

Adapted from: <https://youtu.be/PVrvMJWrJlk>

In the United States, March is Women's History Month.

It celebrates women who are scientists, artists, politicians, and more!

It began in 1978. A school in California celebrated women for one week.

People liked the idea. In 1980, the president made the week of March 8th "Women's History Week".

Then, a group of women asked the government to change it to National Women's History Month.

Now, every March we celebrate important women. Michelle Obama is a woman that we celebrate. Michelle Obama was the First Lady in the White House.

Amelia Earhart is another woman we celebrate. She was a pilot, and she was the first woman to fly an airplane across the Atlantic Ocean.

We also celebrate women who are not famous. In Women's History Month, we celebrate women who helped our country in the past.

We also celebrate women from the present like business women, women who volunteer, women who are mothers, and many more.

What women in your life do you want to celebrate?